

Finance and single-congregation LEPs

Working towards Principles for Good Practice in agreeing financial arrangements in single-congregation LEPs where the Church of England is a partner:

A: Factors affecting the use of membership as a means of assessment

- * Most single congregation LEPs will have a single membership roll, which includes those who were already members of one of the partner churches when they became part of the LEP as well as those who have been jointly confirmed, and so are joint or 'multiple' members.
- * This single membership roll will also record denominational membership, including 'multiple members' in the lists for each of the partner Churches.
- * For the Church of England, 'membership' will be the 'declared membership' as expressed by those who join the Church of England's 'Church Electoral Roll' for the purposes of Synodical government. Following the changes in the Church Representation Rules in 1995, these will include members of partner Churches who have "also" declared themselves to be "a member of the Church of England" for this purpose.
- * It is often best, for the purposes of financial calculation, that a) those who have been jointly confirmed and b) members of partner Churches who have joined the Church Electoral Roll are considered as being a fraction of a member in each of the participating churches.

B: Clarity

- * Whatever formulae are agreed, there is a need for clarity and transparency so that both those within the LEP and those beyond it know that the arrangements are fair.

C: Provision of ministry

- * In a time of pastoral re-organisation - when it is sometimes argued that LEPs are over-staffed, or are not making their proper financial contribution - it is important that LEPs are seen to be subject to the same conditions as other churches, and are not either unduly favoured or penalised.
- * In some LEPs of long standing, patterns for the provision of ministry still reflect the original situation when the LEP was set up, perhaps 30 years ago, with a whole team of full and part-time ministers, one from each participating church.
- * The permissions of Canon B44, however, do allow a degree of shared ministry, so that the life of the LEP can work without this kind of provision, which is difficult both to sustain and to justify.
- * It is perfectly possible, under Canon B44, for a minister from a partner Church to be placed in effective sole charge in a single-congregation LEP where the Church of England is a partner.
- * Differences of ecclesiology mean that the partner Churches have different ways of calculating the amount of a minister's time which can be allocated to the LEP. For some Churches this will include the contribution made through, for example, Local Preachers. The commitment of a Church to an LEP is not only expressed through the provision of ordained stipendiary ministry.
- * There may be occasions where LEP constitutions will need to be re-examined to achieve greater flexibility and to provide a means for re-negotiating patterns of ministerial provision.

D: Pastoral reorganisation.

- * Pastoral reorganisation should be undertaken in partnership with other churches, but this needs pre-existing relationships of trust and mutual accountability to make it happen.
- * To be effective, these relationships need to include those in the diocesan administration and Board of Finance, as well as the Diocesan Pastoral Committee, and not only the ecumenical officers and church leaders who represent the diocese on the ecumenical structures.

CCU Resources 2007

E: Sponsoring Bodies

* should be the means whereby conversations between those responsible for financial matters in the churches can be enabled.

F: Formulae

* Those dioceses which work to an agreed formula for calculating assessments from LEPs have found that it is the process of agreement, whereby the appropriate people from the churches come together and own the formula, which is important, more than the exact content of the formula itself.

* Since few dioceses operate identical schemes for assessments of parish share, the arrangements in each diocese will need to be negotiated separately.

Sample formulae from various dioceses are available from the Council for Christian Unity